Preface

"The book is mainly targeted at teachers and clinicians who are involved in basic training/ undergraduate education of the health professions. However, many of the principles discussed under the topics can be applied across the continuum of postgraduate and continuing health professions education. Attempts have been made to help the reader to make more informed educational decisions in practice and provide learners with a better educational experience."

About the book

"My best hope would be that this thought-provoking book of Madawa and Asela dedicated to, "To all teachers involved in health professions education", will be avidly perused by everyone with an interest to advance health personnel education and be challenged by its ideas and concepts. This will help our students to become the practitioners that their future patients and communities deserve."

DR PALITHA ABEYKOON

Forward

"Many of the chapter titles are to be expected as the topics are fundamental for the development of medical students and early-career doctors."
